Transport Operations and Commercial Driving - Apprenticeship

Job Description

The role of HGV Driver mainly involves the collection and delivery of cargo on behalf of customers. Drivers may also be required to operate equipment including GP tankers for the carrying of bulk liquids, Ejector trailers for waste materials, curtain-sided trailers for dry goods, Fridges and flatbed trailers for larger goods which require restraint to secure them during transit. Training required will be given by the company; drivers will be signed off once training has been completed by an individual. Drivers will be expected to work throughout Ireland but sometimes drivers will be required to deliver/collect product to and from the UK and Europe. On these occasions the company will endeavour to use drivers who are confident to drive in the UK and Europe. Hours of working will be dependent on our client's requirements, drivers have to be flexible in their working time. Drivers will be contracted to work any 5 days out of seven with no set days. Drivers will be expected to work overtime if required in order to meet customer requirements. Start times will be assigned to drivers by the duty supervisor. Overnights from base could be required at any time and drivers must ensure they have the necessary overnight gear at all times to react to business demands.

Responsibilities and Duties:
