Job Description

RRS Construction Limited requires experienced Stone Masons to join our team in Meath. The standing working week is 39 hours, and the salary ranges from €36,605 to €49,000, depending on experience. RRS Construction Limited is an established construction company based in Meath, delivering high-quality building projects across the region.

As a Stone Mason with RRS Construction, you will play a key role in laying, cutting, shaping, and installing stonework for a range of structural and architectural projects. You will work closely with our site teams to ensure precision craftsmanship in stone walls, facades, steps, and other stone features, maintaining the company's high standards of quality and safety. This role requires attention to detail, the ability to read technical drawings, and practical experience with a variety of stone masonry techniques.

The ideal candidate will have a genuine passion for traditional and modern stonework, excellent problem-solving skills on site, and a commitment to delivering outstanding results on schedule. Our projects often involve collaboration across multidisciplinary construction teams, so good communication and teamwork are essential.
